A ROMANCE OF THE WAR.—The Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Eagle tells the following story:

In the year 1861, when the first call for troops was made, James Hendrick, a young man of 18, resolved to leave his father's roof in Wisconsin and go forth to battle for the flag. At the time mentioned he was attached to a young girl of nearly the same age as himself, whose parents were rated among the "rich ones" in that section of country. Her name was Ellen Goodridge. Previous to leaving for the seat of war he informed her of his intentions, promising to return in a few months. After the first battle of Bull Run his regiment was ordered to Washington, and receiving a lieutenant's commission, Hendrick resolved to enter the service for three years, and wrote to his parents and sweetheart to that effect. The news was received by the girl with forboding, and she resolved to accompany him. She immediately acquainted her parents with her resolve, who, in reply, turned her from the house and bade her never come back.

She went, and finding out her lover's regiment obtained permission to do the cooking at the Col.'s headquarters. She followed the regiment through the battle of Gettysburg, Antietam, Fredericksburg, the Wilderness, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Richmond, and in the intervening time went out with young Hendrick in many skirmishes and raids, in one of which she was wounded in the arm, the ball making a very bad flesh wound. After Lee surrendered the object of her choice was taken deathly sick, and was forwarded in an ambulance to Washington, where he was placed in the hospital. Here again her noble heart showed itself. She watched over him, bathed his fevered brow, read to him, wrote home letters for him and on Tuesday last, with a broken heart, closed his eyes in death. The day before an Episcopal minister joined the two in marriage—he dying with a painful disease and she nearly crazed with the thought that after four long years of suffering for him whom she had given up home, friends, everything dear on earth, and for whom she had braved every danger, had gone to another world. The poor girl passed up on the Hudson River Railroad on Thursday, for her home in the far West, not knowing or caring what sort of a reception awaited her there.

DAVIS' DISGUISE AND DAVIS' IRONS.—The last number of the Army and Navy Journal thus states the case in respect to two controverted incidents in the life and adventures of Jefferson Davis: "The question as to the attempt of Jeff. Davis to escape in a woman's cloak and shawl would seem to be finally set at rest—even for those who refuse to believe the sworn testimony before the War Department—by the publication of several descriptions of the affair from rebel sources. These confirm Col. Pritchard's account, and amply refute the slander that the story is an official invention. A collateral bit of evidence comes to us, in the description given by the officer sent to take possession of the water-proof and shawl, of his interview with the Davis party. The ladies refusing to point out which was the proper shawl, the wrong one was taken but the mistake was corrected by a little son of Davis, who called out, 'That isn't the shawl my pa was taken in,' which may be accepted as at least, circumstantial evidence to the fact that there was a shawl in the case.

As to the ironing of Mr. Davis since his imprisonment at Fortress Monroe, the facts are briefly these. It was left discretionary by the Secretary of War with General Miles, who commanded at Old Point, to iron his prisoner or not, as he saw fit, he being held only to a strict accountability for his safety. It became necessary to change the solid door closing the casemate in which Davis is confined for a grated door, which would give him better air, and better secure his safe keeping. The process of changing the doors offering a possibility of escape, it was determined to put a light pair of irons on Mr. Davis' ankles. To this he made such decided objections, assaulting the blacksmith as he stooped to fix [illegible] that [illegible] force became necessary. The anklets were the only irons used, and these were in a short time removed. Whatever may be thought of the necessity for their use, it is certain that their temporary employment has had a most happy effect in reducing the prisoner to a degree of civility which was not eminently characteristic of him on his first incarceration."

SHOOTING AFFAIR.—Yesterday morning a sergeant of marines belonging to the U. S. war vessel Saranac, while proceeding to arrest a marine, who was on duty with others on the wharf at Esquimalt, received a bullet through the fleshy part of the thigh, severing, it is thought, one of the tendons, but the wound it is hoped will not prove very serious. It appears that sentries had been posted to prevent stragglers from leaving the vessel and the man who fired the shot was one of the sentries, and from the effects of a bottle of liquor he procured became wild, rushing around brandishing his rifle, at one time throwing it away. Partly from the effect of the liquor, it is thought, he committed the act, but it is also said that he is a very bad character and that this is a second offense of the sort. He threatened two of his officers a short time previously, and it was by an order received from one of them that the sergeant was about to make the arrest when the shot was fired. The sergeant of police stationed at Esquimalt, arrested the prisoner, whose name is Collins, at once and locked him up, refusing, without instructions, to give him over to the officers of the Saranac, who are desirous of having him, that full justice may be done. The wounded man removed aboard his ship.—Victoria Chronicle, August 23d.

SAN JUAN ISLAND.—Our local authorities have taken upon themselves to adjust the San Juan Island question. They now tacitly acknowledge that it is United States property by collecting duties on vegetables entering this harbor from that disputed locality. The United States authorities, more wise, admit every article from San Juan Island free of duty. When the fact that our officials have overstepped the mark becomes known at home there will be some hard raps administered over their knuckles.—Victoria Chronicle.

The Montana Post describes a gold nugget recently found in that Territory, which weighs to the value of $2,073, and is entirely pure.

Trade with Montana.

[illegible] summer it is very evident [illegible] trade of Montana will be ex[illegible] [illegible] He holds that [illegible] [illegible] St. Louis [illegible] [illegible] Missouri river [illegible] [illegible] attention in this direction [illegible] that they may be able to receive supplies [illegible] [illegible] more cheaply, quickly and with greater [illegible] than they have been furnished from the other side. There is no doubt what [illegible] that the trade of Montana will be greatly [illegible] by another season. In view of [illegible] certainty we ought to be prepared to supply the wants of the people there. In order that it may be known just what we have to contend against in the endeavor to secure this rich and growing trade for ourselves, we purpose to make a statement of what St. Louis has done and can do in the way of supplying Montana with goods.

Twenty steamers started last spring from St. Louis for Fort Benton. Of these no more than six reached their destination. The remainder [illegible] [illegible] above the mouth of Milk river, and some of them did not succeed in getting above Fort Union. From the mouth of Milk river to Fort Benton the distance is fully two hundred miles. Whole cargoes of freight were thus delayed, and the owners subjected to heavy additional expense in order to have their goods carried into the mining region. The stipulated price from St. Louis to Fort Benton was from ten to twelve cents per pound. From the last named point into the mines the cost of carriage is just about as much more. This brings the entire charges on goods from St. Louis to the mines of Montana up to twenty or twenty four cents. If steamers are unable to reach Fort Benton and stop at Milk river, as most of them have done this summer, the cost is still greater. The shipper has to receive his goods at the uppermost point the steamers can reach, and when they do not succeed in getting above Milk river, the rates are increased by just as much as it costs to pack goods from the place where they are landed, to Fort Benton. Besides, the merchants of Montana can receive only a single stock of goods each year by way of the Missouri river. Steamers start up that stream from St. Louis just as soon as the ice breaks up in early spring, but even then they can make only one trip each summer. Indeed the annual rise of waters caused by the melting of the snow, is often over before boats from below can reach the mouth of the Yellowstone. Hence the upper Missouri is frequently so low that boats coming from St. Louis quite often fail to reach Fort Benton.

This is a brief statement of the case as concerns the other side. We have derived the greater part of this information from a gentleman just from Montana and largely interested there. Let us see now what our chances are to secure the Montana trade.

The Bitter Root mountains obstruct direct communication with the mines of Montana from Walla Walla. After October or November they cannot be crossed at all on account of the snow. It will probably be very difficult to find a route for a wagon road over them. Mullan's road, if passable now, would not remain so all winter, and in the spring high water stops travel for a considerable part of the way. This road crosses the Coeur d'Alene and the St. Regis Borgia river nearly one hundred times, and when these streams are full it is not possible to pass through the mountains on this route. To make a good wagon road over this high range would require a vast sum of money. Feed for animals is very scarce in the mountains and the difficulties of the trip, though not insurmountable, are so considerable that we ought to look out for a way which will enable us to avoid them. This way is already provided. It will be easy to avoid all difficulties by passing around these mountains by Pen d' Oreille river to the mines. From White Bluffs to Haines' ferry at the lower end of Pen d' Oreille Lake, the distance is about two hundred miles. From thence to the mines of Prickly Pear, Blackfoot, &c., it is two hundred and seventy-five miles further. The next need then, is a steamer on Pen d' Oreille Lake. The country in that vicinity is so swampy that it can not be traveled except when the waters are very low. There are about forty miles of good easy navigation on the lake. From the head of the lake goods may be taken in any direction, as this point is accessible from all quarters at any season of the year. We may very safely calculate that it will not cost more than 12 cents per pound to carry freight by this route from here into the mines of Montana. The trip can be made at all seasons of the year and the merchants of Montana can replenish their stocks whenever it suits them to do so, whereas by the Missouri they can get goods but once a year, as before stated.

The cost, inconvenience and delay incident to the attempt to procure supplies from St. Louis have induced many of the Montana merchants to look hitherward, in the hope of being able to do better. It has been found during the present summer that the transportation of goods from the Columbia river to the mines of Montana has actually cost seven cents per pound less than from the other side. Next year we shall be called on for a greater quantity of supplies for these mines and our merchants ought not only to be ready to furnish them, but to provide for opening routes whereby they can be sent forward as cheaply and expeditiously as possible. We are persuaded that the plan we have sketched is perfectly feasible one. To secure the rich trade of Montana is worthy of an effort and we are quite certain that if the matter be undertaken with proper spirit it will prove a complete success.

BACKED OUT. Our dispatches announce that the rebels Mason and Breckinridge are about to come over to Canada. We suppose these rebel outlaws want to get a sight of their former country even though they are forbidden on pain of death to enter it. They are welcome to all the satisfaction the process will afford them. Next to the gratification which loyal men would derive from hanging them, is the real pleasure we all experience when we see these dishonored wretches beating [illegible] about the world [illegible] mankind.

THE OREGON AGRICULTURIST. Attention is directed to the advertisement of a new paper to be called the Oregon Agriculturist, soon to be issued at Salem. An Agricultural paper is a thing which Oregon has long needed. The people of the State ought to support a paper of this kind and we trust they will do it. We desire to see the Oregon Agriculturist prove a success.

Representation in South Carolina.

NEW YORK, August 28.—From a highly intelligent gentleman from South Carolina we learn that [illegible] are embarrassed in settling the basis of representation in that State. [illegible] will be in favor of basing it on a white basis, while the lower country, which has heretofore [illegible] the Legislature of the State by preponderance in slaves, will insist [illegible] of the representation.

Louisiana Plantations.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A Baton Rouge correspondent says improved cotton and sugar lands in Louisiana can be purchased at very low prices; some plantations being entirely deserted by the original proprietors; others are so heavily mortgaged they have been abandoned, while others can be bought for the merest trifle on account of the people being so disgusted with the new state of affairs in the State.

Freedmen will work freely and industriously, but they are rather suspicious of the promises made by their former masters and are rather reluctant to enter into contracts with them.

Terrible Railroad Collision on Long Island.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Greenport train and the Hunters Point train on the Long Island railroad collided this morning about 10 o'clock near [illegible] station. The Greenport train [illegible] minutes before the time and met the other train at full speed about a mile west of that place. The eastward bound train was completely smashed to pieces. The scene was so frightful to those who escaped injury that some fainted with horror at the appalling spectacle. Men were hanging suspended between parts of the wreck by lacerated tendons of their legs, both of which had been torn away. Others were suspended by the throat across which the string of cars had been crushed; others were lying between tons of crushed cars. Three of the Hunters Point cars were torn to pieces and wedged into each other. On one of these the largest loss of life occurred. The shock was so great that the trains rebounded two or three hundred feet from each other. Both engines were smashed. The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] or twenty persons were killed and quite a large number wounded.

Riot in New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A riot occurred in East New York yesterday. Many persons were assaulted by rowdies and [illegible] were badly beaten. Several street cars were demolished. Houses in the vicinity were damaged. The rioters continued to amuse themselves until the police interfered.

News from China.

NEW YORK, August 28.—Advices from China to the 22d June state that the new rebellion is spreading [illegible]. The rebels [illegible] within [illegible] hundred miles of Pekin where they occupy a strong position. The authorities of Pekin have applied for British military officers to conduct their rescue. Colonel Rutherford is in the custody of mandarins who refused to give him up on demand of the American Consul.

Breckinridge coming to Canada.

NEW YORK, August 28.—J. C. Breckinridge, late rebel Secretary of War, is confidently expected to arrive in Canada in a few days. Mason, Commissioner of the Confederacy in London, will accompany him. Breckinridge's nephew and son are now in New York.

The Times says a subscription is in circulation in Richmond for the relief of Mrs. Jeff. Davis and family, who, it is said, are in indigent circumstances. So far it has met with little success.

The Late Railroad Accident in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 28.—Seventy-three bodies, five of them whites, have been recovered from the wreck near Reynold's Station. One car underneath the others and in the bed of the stream has not yet been reached. It is said to contain over 20 negro soldiers who have of course all perished.

Arraignment of Ketchum.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Edward B. Ketchum was arraigned this morning before Justice Hogan in the magistrate's probate room in the Tombs. None were admitted but those especially interested in the case. The prisoner asked for an adjournment of the case for four days, as the gentlemen he expected to act as counsel had not appeared. District Attorney Hall agreed to the adjournment until Monday next, the prisoner to be committed to the Tombs till then. The adjournment was granted and the prisoner committed to the Tombs.

From Europe—The Cholera.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The City of Washington, from Liverpool Aug. 16th, and Queenstown, Aug. 17th, has arrived. The cattle plague continued to be a prominent topic in England. The disease is spreading. The cholera continued its ravages at Constantinople. The mortality had increased to nearly four hundred deaths daily. The weather in England continued unsettled. Heavy rains interfered with harvest operations. Prices for breadstuffs were higher. The Great Eastern arrived at Cork Haven Aug. 17. Cable prospects were generally regarded as hopeful. Shares had improved from 3 to 5 per cent. It was thought that arrangements would be made for the immediate renewal of the efforts to recover the cable.

Napoleon had gone to the Camp of Chalons. Some foreign journals have invented rumors that Napoleon contemplates the annexation of Belgium to France after the death of Leopold, giving the Duke of Brabant Mexico instead of the Belgium crown, and also giving Venetia to Italy, the Danubian Principalities to Austria, and territory in northern Germany to Prussia.

The Bank of France [illegible] seven million francs during the week.

The Bourse is heavy at Rome. The army is to be increased to [illegible],000 men. The cholera continued its ravages.

Negotiations between Spain and Rome on account of the recognition of Italy are satisfactorily concluded. Spain promises to protect the Pope and the interests of religion in Spain.

A good deal of rain had fallen, interfering with the harvest. There are also some reports that the potato disease is appearing in some parts of Ireland. Under the circumstances the corn market had been firmer, with an advance in prices.

Queen Victoria and the junior members of the Royal family arrived at Antwerp and proceeded to visit the King of the Belgians.

A terrible tragedy had occurred in London. A man took three children to lodge temporarily at a coffee house and murdered them all in bed by suffocation. The murderer escaped.

The Trip to Mount Hood. — We this morning devote [illegible] space allotted [illegible] to Mount Hood, by [illegible] party [illegible]. The notes will be found [illegible] interesting, though [illegible] under our observation [illegible]. The party [illegible] as they have no inclination at present [illegible] at the [illegible] to the mountain [illegible] the atmosphere was [illegible] thought [illegible] distinguished [illegible] looking from [illegible] we think it hardly [illegible] likely what was [illegible]

The Mount Hood party [illegible] Ed. Albright [illegible] Daly, and Thaddeus W [illegible] being a portion of a party bound by persons who [illegible] determined to satisfy the curiosity of all [illegible] the summit of the [illegible]. The [illegible] not [illegible] a feeling that this article would not prove [illegible] somewhat as [illegible] must personally [illegible] Mount Hood. A rough subject [illegible] handling.

After a few preliminary arrangements [illegible] the party got fairly under way Monday, Aug. 21st [illegible] a distance [illegible] known as Mr. Asel [illegible] this city where [illegible] employed for the first [illegible] the culinary department [illegible] as great a variety as [illegible] the fields through the roads [illegible] would not neglect [illegible] to give us an appetite [illegible] this bed.

The next morning, Tuesday [illegible] full of Mount Hood [illegible] our spirits were higher than [illegible] Mount Hood to [illegible] or otherwise [illegible] say that Messrs. Shed [illegible] against the [illegible] of the party [illegible] and the teams being unmanageable [illegible] and that combined with the fact [illegible] twelve miles off the road on the direct [illegible] Oregon City prevented us from [illegible] further [illegible] on the east side of Sandy. The [illegible] we are getting lost was the [illegible] the steep bluff this side [illegible] in the slippery mud [illegible] the other side of the grade [illegible] and all to their [illegible] the team and [illegible] on our way rejoicing.

We put up for the night [illegible] a very generous individual without [illegible] seemed to be to [illegible] taking and [illegible] belonging to the [illegible] He informed us that it would be [illegible] and provisions for three days [illegible] snow, this he knew [illegible] be questioned.

[illegible] we were roused from our peaceful [illegible] of a fierce looking bird supposed [illegible] the night in a disagreeable [illegible] Our road now lay in a [illegible] a ridge or back bone, running [illegible] for about seven miles, [illegible] Mountain House [illegible] where we procured feed for our horses. After leaving this ridge we [illegible] Ferry Flat [illegible] but escaped any serious consequences [illegible] fortunes as on our former mishap [illegible] a Ferry Flat we traveled up Sandy [illegible] miles, through a very rough and rocky [illegible] the worst part of the road on wagons [illegible] to determine which has the preeminence [illegible] or sand. We supposed this to be the [illegible] the stream takes its name. At this [illegible] stream presents a very muddy [illegible] by the action of the rain upon the [illegible] which form its banks.

[illegible] our horses and dined on cold ham and [illegible] served on plate—tin plate. The [illegible] was occupied in reaching Stump[illegible] miles from the first crossing of Sandy [illegible] from our destination. Here we were [illegible] by Mr. Crawford, the gentlemanly [illegible] of the Stump[illegible] Hotel—a [illegible] cracks, and every crack a chimney—who [illegible] permission to pitch our tent near his [illegible] ample justice to a pot of soup [illegible] the debris in the dough pan some [illegible] and some bacon, flavored with an old [illegible] individual belonging to our [illegible] mistaken for a blue jay, where we camped the [illegible]

[illegible] determined to leave the wagon and team [illegible] Mr. Crawford, and pack our provisions [illegible] foot of the snow, as we could procure no [illegible] kind, on which to pack our provisions. [illegible] Thursday morning, we were all ready [illegible] weighing about forty pounds, consisting of [illegible] and blankets, strapped to our shoulders [illegible] to the foot of "Laurel Hill" [illegible] walking. In comparison to that we [illegible] but before we had ascended half [illegible] Laurel Hill the little romance [illegible] was all dispelled and the [illegible] very sensibly in weight—[illegible] illustration, the principal of gravitation [illegible]

[illegible] is divided by a small canyon, and [illegible] the eastern and western sides are named [illegible] Laurel and Little Laurel. The distance [illegible] of the first or Big Laurel Hill to the point [illegible] leaving the road is seven miles [illegible] "Corral," a camp [illegible] is a ridge, covered with burnt timber [illegible] running in a north [illegible] left the wagon road and plunged into [illegible] reaching the snow before night [illegible] four miles of up-hill walking [illegible] by the entangled whortle berry [illegible] grass, growing along the sides of [illegible]

[illegible] three-quarters of a mile from the [illegible] in a small cluster of stunted pines [illegible] from the mass of rocks [illegible] of the mountain is [illegible]

[illegible] had told us, we were led [illegible] could not be obtained at this [illegible] is no doubt true during [illegible] we had no difficulty in getting [illegible] very inferior quality one half being [illegible] principally of gravel [illegible] we found it much better to [illegible] We spent the night in pulling [illegible] and trying to find a soft rock [illegible]

[illegible] and after swallowing [illegible] prepared to make [illegible] himself with a stout stick [illegible] a spy glass [illegible] from the packs, an eight [illegible] other little [illegible] The [illegible] Albright [illegible] and [illegible] the ascent from the [illegible] may be seen from [illegible]

[illegible] from the top we found a broken hat [illegible] to a certain broken-down [illegible] to this point.

[illegible] the cliffs that crown the mountain [illegible] rolling down their rugged sides [illegible] heard in every direction. At [illegible] through perils unnumbered [illegible] the western edge of what we supposed [illegible] crater. It is about one-half mile in [illegible] and from present appearances [illegible] an immense cavity in the top [illegible] that some great commotion or up[illegible] away the southern side, leaving [illegible] and northern portions standing [illegible] entirely filled with snow, and it [illegible] may be traveled over with perfect safety [illegible] in the season when the cracks are filled [illegible] side of the crater several [illegible] off leaving huge masses of rock [illegible] from which clouds of sulphurous smoke or vapor [illegible] at first the impression that [illegible] chimneys to this miniature Hades. Just [illegible] base of the most northerly of three peaks [illegible] crater—a deep depression in the western [illegible] which possibly fills the old crater about [illegible] of a mile in width at the top and finally [illegible] the inclination of [illegible]

[illegible] fifty feet wide [illegible] Between [illegible] portion of the original crater [illegible] to be followed in order to [illegible] the ascent [illegible] is broken by numerous [illegible] feet deep [illegible] to [illegible] opposite side [illegible] that while following him Mr. Daly lost his footing and fell twice in succession but brought up [illegible] a depth of twenty feet each time. He finding [illegible] with his fingers and so he regained his perpendicular [illegible] heard a rushing sound just above him and [illegible] Mr. Patterson descending [illegible] speed toward the [illegible] by turning himself parallel [illegible] he managed to [illegible] Daly and Welch, but the [illegible] more frightened than hurt, and soon reached the [illegible] the highest cliff where they found the most [illegible] taking bad [illegible] peak is about two hundred feet high [illegible] and composed of loose rocks that are [illegible] the dip of the snow [illegible]

Daly and Welch [illegible] the ascent but were obliged to abandon [illegible] the large quantities of rock dislodged by Patterson [illegible] and Daly in their perilous ascent. From the summit [illegible] of the mountain the place where Portland stands [illegible] by the smoke rising from the city. We had [illegible] view of the noble Columbia winding like a [illegible] through the vast evergreen forests [illegible] and below the Dalles. At half past four o'clock [illegible] the steamer when dancing was resumed [illegible] At six o'clock the party were landed in Portland [illegible] happy and weary [illegible] excursion as is often arrived at.

Death of Walter Boykin.—Gershon Walter Boykin, third son of Rev. W. J. Boykin, breathed his last after an illness of some three weeks, of typhoid fever, at a few minutes past six o'clock last evening, at the residence of Mr. Ralston in this city. Walter had his fondness with all other members of the human kind, but generally speaking he was of noble disposition and had many fine attributes of character. He was a Printer by profession and was formerly employed in this establishment. Lately he was engaged at the Dalles and quite recently returned to Portland. His aged father was with him during his last illness rendering him comfort and all that was possible to restore him to health was done but proved unavailing. Deceased was a member of Protection Engine Company No. 4, and his funeral will take place under charge of the Company at 2 o'clock p. m. to-day, from the M. E. Church, on Taylor street.

Pulling a Snag.—Several days since the chain of Knott's ferry boat took up a large snag in the river opposite this city and pulled it in to the bank at the foot of Stark street. The Frush boat afterwards pulled it out again into the stream, but it did not float away, and being an annoyance to pilots, Capt. Turnbull of the Fannie Troup took it in tow and left it clear of the channel below the ferry landing on the east side.

Attention Firemen.—Chief Engineer Buchtel requests that a delegation from each Fire Company of the city assemble at the House of Company No. 4 to-day, to attend with that Company the funeral services on the occasion of the funeral of their deceased brother, G. Walter Boykin, at the M. E. Church at 2 o'clock p. m.

Reconstruction.—Late Eastern news indicates that the work of reorganizing the government of the Southern States is going on with very satisfactory rapidity. Lawful authority is so firmly re-established in Tennessee, that in viewing the present situation of affairs there, we are almost led to forget that the rebels once had that State under complete control. In Arkansas, there is perfect peace. No acts of violence have occurred in that State since the surrender of the rebel armies. A loyal Governor and a loyal Legislature stand at her head, a free Constitution has been chosen by her people, the great Amendment abolishing slavery has been ratified, and all parties yield a ready obedience to the laws of the State and of the General Government. In Louisiana the work of pacification and reconstruction is going on with equal satisfactoriness. Mississippi is coming back with a unanimity on the part of her people which shows how glad they are to resume their place under the protecting ægis of the Government. North Carolina, always in favor of the Union when her people have had an opportunity to manifest their loyal purposes, is now returning with alacrity to the position from which her traitor sons hurled her down. Poor misguided Virginia, punished more severely than any of her erring sisters, seems too much exhausted to make an effort to restore authority within her borders. Many of her people are apparently not disposed to submit quietly even now but seem still to foolishly cherish a surly hostility toward those with whom they are to live in close political relationship hereafter. It will take time to cure this obduracy. The other States lately in rebellion, are remarkably quiet considering the great commotion which was upon them only a little time ago. There are many impediments in the way of restoring perfect unity and peace but by patience and firmness we shall overcome them all. We could scarcely expect to make more rapid progress in the right direction than we are now witnessing. To many the process of restoring authority may seem a slow one, but the people must be content to wait a little further for the full realization of the great object for which loyalty has toiled so long.

The Little Blackfoot Mines.—Several parties arrived here on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week direct from the mines situate on the tributaries of the Little Blackfoot river which is near the western base of the Rocky Mountains, probably between 375 and 400 miles east from this point, by the usually traveled route. Three or four pack trains which left here in May are among the returned, and intend to go back with supplies as soon as they can get fitted out at the stores of the merchants on Main street. The parties arrived do not give [illegible] flattering accounts of the diggings, yet they say the mines are very good, but not so extensive that a "rush" would not overrun them. Many hands are being worked on what is called the Ophir Gulch [illegible] the Little Blackfoot and companies who had gotten fairly to work were making all the way from $5 to $1000 a day to the hand. The gold taken from the bills or in mountain sides or areas while that farther down on the bottoms is fine in character. There were some five or six hundred miners operating in the mines and the parties who came down say they met about three hundred more going in from the Coeur d'Alene country. Quite a town called "Blackfoot City" is growing up on Ophir Creek. The general tenor of the news is about the same as that [illegible] the 21st July and 4th of August. Since the arrival of the trains there has been a [illegible] in certain quarters [illegible] the mines [illegible] from all we can gather the apparent [illegible] from the fact that there is [illegible] kinds of goods and [illegible] than from reports of the richness or extent of the diggings.

All of the four pack trains will start back with supplies and goods of various kinds between this and Monday or Tuesday next. They came down and will return by the Coeur d'Alene and St. Regis Borgia valleys.—Walla Walla Statesman.

False Delicacy.—The friends of those who are troubled with bad breath and through over squeamishness dislike to refer to it commit a positive and cruel mistake, especially if they are aware of the acknowledged great efficacy of the Fragrant Sozodont. This is the true and only remedy for the difficulty, there is no valid excuse for a bad breath now.

The Wreck of the Brother Jonathan

A THRILLING [illegible]

[illegible] the following story from the lips of Mr. [illegible] a passenger from the lost steamer [illegible]

[illegible] at half past 1 [illegible] when I was suddenly startled by a [illegible] the distinct [illegible] when I saw a piece of ship [illegible] the water and a man running [illegible] with a life preserver on which [illegible] great danger [illegible] with one hand and grasping a [illegible] with the other I ran upon deck. [illegible] was that ladies rushing from their rooms [illegible] their hair hanging loosely [illegible] them and their faces pallid as death. Owing to the [illegible] many were sick in their berths [illegible] When I reached the [illegible] the boats already lowered [illegible] a woman spring on [illegible] and struck her. When I last saw her she was sinking and pressing her head with one hand.

Most of that which is detailed above was seen while sitting in the boat in which I was [illegible] and with which I now have to deal. When I first reached the deck the boat above mentioned was already filled with [illegible] Whether this was selfish [illegible] the little boat [illegible] the larger one [illegible] whether you would have [illegible] can only be decided by the test of similar circumstances.

Seeing the boat full and ready to be lowered I [illegible] them, "Save my child," [illegible] on my life-preserver because I had no expectation that they would take me, but one of the men said, "Don't you want to come too?" I joyfully accepted the opportunity to go with my child and was soon dragged over the guards by two of the men. Just then a man with a [illegible] jacket on jumped into the boat, [illegible] lighting upon the Chinawoman's shoulders and the other upon a child, but neither uttered a cry. The Captain at the same time exclaimed, "Stop! [illegible] you'll all be drowned!" Here a poor woman all dripping wet ran up from below and rushed to our boat, but the barkeeper, who was standing near, seized her around the waist and held her back, telling her that she would be drowned if she went in that boat. About this time [illegible] the crew attempted to loosen our boat, and suddenly she hung one end down at a frightful angle, threatening to plunge us all in the waves below, but we clung to the boat, to the seats, to one another, I know not how, till the barkeeper loosened her at the other end, and we were let down. Here danger still threatened us, the rolling steamer to engulf us in her dark whirlpool, the angry waves to dash our frail boat to atoms, and a shoal of drowning people struggling to catch at any hope of rescue, to clutch at our boat and drag it down with them. The crew hastened to clear the steamer, and as I looked back I noticed one lady standing with her husband and two children on the deck, looking wistfully after us. I had noticed her before as being a very beautiful woman and shall long remember the expression of that sweet face. Soon after we left the steamer a huge wave rushed over us and nearly filled our boat, making us wish ourselves back on the sinking ship. But "Onward!" was the cry. "Whither?" was the question. "There is land," said one, and we steered in that direction and found it. Some of the men rowed, while others bailed the water out, while the women crouched in the bottom of the boat, shivering and crying, almost perished with cold. Mr. Patterson even took off his vest and put it on one of the women who seemed more thinly clad than the rest. All honor to him, for he is a brave soul! Under his command the crew worked hard, and as we have seen, successfully; true, most men will work for their lives when they will not work for anything else, but it is possible that without the guidance of a master spirit, their efforts would have failed.

We were so arranged in the boat as to give her an equal balance, and when the women sobbed he assured them by saying, "This is a life boat and if any can live in this sea, she can; so don't be afraid." After we left the steamer, we continued to look back, and when borne upon the crest of a wave could see her; then we would plunge down in the trough of the sea and she'd be out of sight, till at last we came up, and she was gone! Mr. Patterson exclaimed, "There! the Brother Jonathan is no more! It is just forty five minutes since she struck." Now we could not look backward to our sinking shipmates, we looked forward to our own rescue; and ah, how anxiously! Who shall measure the horror, dread and suffering that were crowded into those four hours from the steamer to the landing! At last we heard the joyful news that half an hour would take us into Crescent City; but as we neared the land other dangers awaited us. Those frightful breakers rolling against us, and frowning cliffs towering above us looked danger and dismay to our anxious hearts; and the many voiced waters dashing on the beach seemed to murmur a low, deep, funeral dirge.

But by almost superhuman efforts and I must not omit to say through the mercies of God we land and are saved—some of us perhaps for a worse fate! We got out of the boat cold and chilled, our few rags dripping and clinging to our shivering forms. The first [illegible] seen on the beach were some Indians gaily decked in feathers and my first thought was, we have mistaken the place and landed among savages—"have been saved from the wreck, (perhaps) to be devoured upon the strand!" But soon the appearance of a broad faced German reassured me and I felt relieved. This good man was very kind, and rendered us all possible assistance. Our boat had been seen coming in, and now the people hastened to learn the cause of our sudden appearance, and when informed a most intense excitement prevailed. We were conducted to the hotel where we were most kindly received, and every possible assistance tendered to us. The ladies set about preparing clothing for us and even the poorest people in the town hastened to bring their little offerings to our relief. We were nearly naked, and were cold and hungry, but thanks to the generous hearts and diligent hands of the Crescent City people, we were soon clothed, warmed and fed. Indeed I cannot find any expression strong enough to convey the fullness of gratitude my heart feels when I recall the kindness and sympathy manifested by those people toward us. But in their friendly offices to the saved, they failed not to seek the lost, and that same night boats were sent out in the hope of picking up some, and Mr. Patterson notwithstanding the great fatigue of the day, went out that evening to guide the boats to the scene of the wreck. But after three days fruitless search, these returned, bringing no tidings of the missing ones, and dashing to atoms the fond hopes that [illegible] and clung to the possibility that some dear one might be picked up alive. On the second day after the calamity the Indians reported [illegible]

PROGRESS OF RECONSTRUCTION IN ARKANSAS.—[illegible] the progress of reconstruction in Arkansas events have conspired favorably for the early rehabilitation of the State in the Union. The Free State Government organized in March last year appears [illegible] No [illegible] committed within the last two months [illegible] the disbanding of the [illegible] Confederate forces. Nearly [illegible] organized [illegible] the [illegible] General Reynolds [illegible] The [illegible] Murphy [illegible] Governor [illegible] Department. [illegible] The principal drawback to settlement in Arkansas [illegible] is the transportation over the State [illegible] There are but forty miles of railroad [illegible] and the stage lines are all broken up [illegible] difficult to travel through the State [illegible] large crops are planted [illegible] more than [illegible] the rebel [illegible] who plunder [illegible] the vigilance of all Government agents. [illegible] the State Government [illegible] support [illegible] the members from the State present themselves for admission to Congress there will be [illegible] about their reception.—New York Post, July 19th.

THE OVERLAND MAIL.—[illegible] bids for the mail service between San Francisco and China are to be opened on the 1st of August. The Pacific Mail Company expect to get the contract, but the present prospect is that they will have strong competition. [illegible] is evidently [illegible] the China Mail line the finest in the world at the service shall be awarded to him. At this late day there is no impropriety in stating that his estimates are based upon the construction of four powerful screw steamers of 1,000 tons each. He does not hesitate to declare his confident belief that all high priced merchandise can be transported from China to the Atlantic seaboard via steamer to San Francisco, thence by screw steamers to Panama, thence across the Isthmus, and steamers or sailing vessels to New York, at rates that will prove highly remunerative both to shippers and transporters. Certainly his calculations do not seem extravagant in view of the rates which fast freights between New York and San Francisco via the Isthmus freely command. These facts and suggestions are of much interest to California readers, because they show that private capital and enterprise are competing for the establishment of a new channel of commerce and trade that can not fail to leave a handsome share of its profits in the hands of our own people.—Cal. Bulletin.

SLAVE BREEDING.—A correspondent of the New York World writing from Columbus, Georgia, says of the disposition of the Southern people before the war, to stimulate slave breeding:

One can see now with very clear eyes the extent of the curse and misery which the system of slavery has brought upon the Southern people. It was the merchandise value of the slave which made his master cling to the system. Of 4,000,000 of slaves at the South, only about 800,000, or one out of five who worked in the field, were really profitable from the labor. Every household was cumbered with more of them than were serviceable, more than they needed. The only compensation for this vast burden imposed upon them was the natural (or rather unnatural) increase in their number which made them a species of wealth easily exchangeable. It is no flight of fancy but a startling reality, which the more intelligent here acknowledge, that the great majority of the Southern slaveholders were in reality keeping black breeding pens. The teeming fertility of the servile womb instead of being checked was stimulated or at least unrestrained. A few of these people are now able to see what a dangerous state of affairs this would ultimately have led them, and are making up their minds to be thankful for the riddance of so questionable a possession.

The sentiment of the people, however, is quite submissive and patient. They are making all the haste they know how to put themselves right again.

A SOUTHERN "CHARACTER."—A writer in the New Orleans Picayune writes as follows of a preacher he saw in upper Georgia:

"After throwing his eyes around the house in a threatening manner, with 'Oh, you miserable sinners,' exposed at every lineament of his round face, he went on in a serious voice, 'My brethren, in order to check all idle curiosity I will state that my name is Elijah Brewster, from Jasper county, Kentuck [snuffle] and I am free to confess without fear of successful contradiction, and I am here to-day to say, and it will at once occur to every intelligent and reflecting mind when I make bold to tell you that I have been preachin' now purty nigh gwine on three year, and on an average of five hundred sermons a year that I have preached to the sinners, to the Injuns, to the [snuffle] to the niggers and to the wood-hoppers of Spaldin county, but never, no never [blubber] has I seed in all that time so ill mannered so sinful and depraved and devil hugging a congregation as this one here settin before me to-day, and I want to tell the young men and women a settin back there agin the melojun, that comes here a courtin and a flirtin and a [illegible] of notes around the melojun, and a laffin, and a gigglin, and a flying in the face of Providence, that the laws of the State throws around me certain protections, and I am going to have it. And what's more, if the thing ain't stopped I am [illegible] got their names to call out their names from the pulpit next Sunday and present 'em to the grand jury moreover.'"

HANDWRITING.—Aristo wrote in a small, fine, [illegible] hand; [illegible] a large, free, and flowing style. Goethe wrote neatly, even elegantly. [illegible] Hawthorne wrote [illegible] somewhat [illegible] Longfellow writes [illegible] back hand. [illegible] Parker [illegible] Chalmers [illegible] Emerson writes [illegible]

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
